RoboVault Sponsors the 49th Annual Original Miami Beach Antique Show

RoboVault's state-of-the-art technology provides unprecedented security for precious valuables

Miami, Fla., November 16, 2009 – RoboVault, the first high-tech robotic self storage facility of its kind in the world, will be a platinum sponsor of the 49th Annual Original Miami Beach Antique Show, taking place at the Miami Beach Convention Center from January 21-25, 2010. RoboVault's state-of-the-art technology provides unprecedented security for antiques, jewelry, and other precious valuables.

"We're thrilled to be partnering with RoboVault at the Original Miami Beach Antique Show," said Andrea Canady, fair director of the Original Miami Beach Antique Show. "This sponsorship provides our exhibitors and attendees with first-hand insight into the benefits and security features associated with this state-of-the-art storage facility."

RoboVault has developed a robotic storage facility that combines cutting edge technology with state-of-the-art security systems that make the facility virtually impenetrable from theft, the elements, from bullets, fire and even Category 5 hurricanes. Our facilities contain cutting edge biometric fingerprint scan, photoelectric beams, motion sensors and networked CCTV systems. The unique high-tech security facility features a fully automated robotic retrieval system that safely stores valuable ranging from valuable jewelry to luxury automobiles, to climate controlled vaults for wine, and safety deposit boxes for personal documents.

In addition, RoboVault's features include: fine art and antique services. These services include packing, crating and shipping, local and domestic art shuttle, installation and rigging with strict adherence to the National Gallery of Art guidelines.

"We're excited to be sponsoring the Original Miami Beach Antique Show," said Marvin Chaney, founder, developer and owner of RoboVault. "This show affords us the ability to demonstrate our product capabilities to our core audience."

The Original Miami Beach Antique Show will exhibit rare and unusual historical art collections and antiques, such as furniture by Marcel Breuer; original paintings and works of art spanning more than three centuries; fine American and European silver; textiles and rugs; highly sought 19th and 20th Century art glass, such as Tiffany, Lalique, Galle, Webb and Goodall; Asian Art; world-renowned German, French and English porcelain, such as Meissen and KPM; objects of virtue and pieces from Art Deco and Modernism eras.

Show hours are from noon to 8 p.m. Thursday, January 21, through Sunday, January 24, and noon to 6 p.m. on Monday, January 25. A one-time admission of $15 is valid for all five days of the show.
